

Chad has recently taken a test, so he opens his phone to check his grades.

Chad has recently taken a test, so he opens his phone to check his grades.

He sees some new unread emails and checks them.

Chad responds to his important emails.

Chad checks his assignments to make sure he's on track.

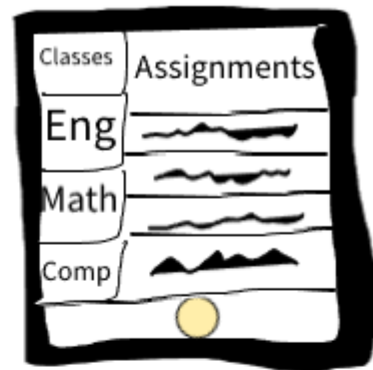

After remembering the big project due tomorrow, he rushes back to his room to finish.

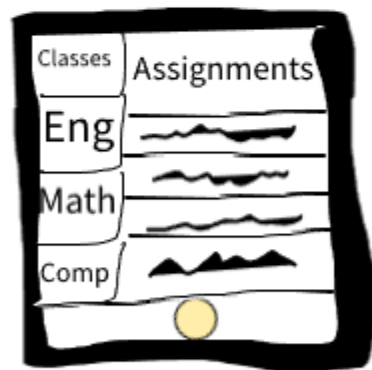

Yes, queen my matcha taste totes so good right now.

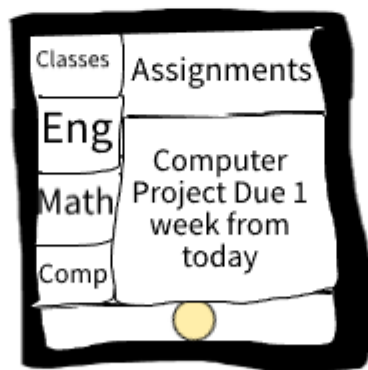

I FORGOT! I NEED TO SEE WHEN MY PROJECT IS DUE!

She first when to the home screen of the app on her phone

She see's first everything that is due in the upcoming weeks for all of her classes

She is able to click on her computer class and see when her next project is due

She's happy since she didn't have to spend 10 minutes to find something simple

He sees an assignment listed along with its due date and grade. To Austin's surprise, the assignment name is a link that leads him to blackboard for submission.

Austin then tries another class, but this time looks at the schedule, where he sees an outline of the next three weeks of assignments. Each assignment links back to a specialized Dropbox the instructor created for submission.

Finally, Austin inspects his profile, which shows a quick overview of his grade, upcoming work, and instructor email links.

